Makarios Predicts 'Disaster' If Bishops Make Him Resign

Noting the secrecy that sur-rounded Mr. Nixon's talks in Greek Orthodox Holy Synod that he said. if he stepped down as Cyprus's president, it would lead to "nstional disaster." But he said he will be obliged to do so if the synod's ruling bishops insist.

In a letter delivered to the synod yesterday, he said: "My resignation would lead to the disolution of the government of Cyprus and to national disaster." He was replying to the three bishops' request 18 days ago that he give up his public office bc-cause, they said, holding it runs counter to the spirit of the church. Copies of the archbishop's letter were delivered by the Cyprus Embassy in Athens to newsmen today. "The Holy Synod's demand . . . especially at times of such gravity for the nation, may be considered as contempt for the people and would provoke bitterness among church followers, with unfavorable repercussions on the church," President Makarios said.

'Obligation to Accept'

The archbishop, who has been president of Cyprus since it gained independence from the British in 1960, told the prelates he did not agree with their decision, but "should you wish to insist on your recommendation, I would consider it my obligation to accept lt."

The 58-year-old president began his letter by accusing his bishops of not adhering to church rules governing synod meetings.

He said the specially convened meeting on March 2, when the ministration "in an effort to bishops made their demand, was irregular and invalid. No minutes were kept, because of the bishops' "haste to reach

And More Economic Aid for Ulster

London Plans Easing of Internment

By Bernard D. Nossiter LONDON, March 20 (WP) .-The government today made public for the first time the broad outlines of a three-point plan aimed at bringing peece to Northern Ireland.

Ulster's future. The home secretary said that everybody wanted to see a "rundown" of internment. However, he continued, the government does "not want to see the gunment official privately confirmed on the streets of Belfast.

This formulation implied that some of the internee, are not "gunmen" and that they will thus be released. A high government official privately confirmed that Mr. Maudling had chosen his words with care and had meant precisely this.

Troops to Stay

On other demands raised by some Ulster Catholies, Mr. Mandling showed no blut of any give. The soldiers in Ulster are United Kingdom soldiers, he said, and Ulster is part of the United Kingdom. Therefore, he argued, troops cannot be withdrawn from their own country. This point, he said, was often misunderstood in the United States, an ap-(Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

LAHORE, Pasistan, Marit 23 (NYT).-Eritain's Foreign Secre-Sir Alec Douglas Holla?. talked today with Pakistani President Zulfikar All Bhumo and later appeared pessimistic about progress toward a peace settisment on the Indo-Pakistani subcontinent.

Sir Alec held formal talks of a little over two hours with Mr. Bhutto and met the president again at hinch and dinner. Brit-ain has offered Pakistan, India and Bangladesh a venue for talks in London if talks should come about, but Sir Alec indicated that consideration of a venue at this atage is premature.

The foreign secretary was asked whether he could perceive any substantive progress toward a peace settlement between Fakistan and India in the three months since the December war.

He replied: . "That's just it. The longer this situation [the absence of a settlement or even of talks between the parties lasts, the more rigid it becomes. And I am bound to say the United States has something to say about that."

Favors Direct Talks

Sir Alec said Britain favors direct talks among India, Pakistan end Bangladesh as soon as possible, but ha did not indicate that his conversation with Mr. Bhutto or his earlier talks in New Delhi and Dacca had helped.

The foreign secretary said Britain was not seeking to become mediator or to "offer its good offices" but was merely willing to help the disputants settle their quarrel if asked to

He said that while Britain still regrets Pakistan'a withdrawal from the British Commonwealth after Britain recognized Bangladesh he had not come here to try to persuane Pakistan to change its mind.

Some Dockers Shun Chrome

Rhodesia Cargo Stirs U.S. Boycott

NEW ORLEANS, March 20 (Reuters) -- Workers today began unloading a 25,000-ton cargo of Rhodesian chrome ore despite a walkout by some dockers who refused to handle exports from that

The ore is the first consignment to arrive from Rhodesia since the government lifted in January an embargo on chrome imports from Rhodesia. . . .

Capt. Harlan Hall, president of the Burnside Terminal Co. at Burnside, 30 miles up the Mississippi from New Orleans, said the Argentine vessel Santos Vega, carrying the ore, docked there early today. The unloading is scheduled to be completed tomorrow.

Orders From New York Capt. Hall said members of tha International Longshoremen's Association refused to unload the ship on orders from union headquarters in New York.

The ILA said it was supporting a United Nations embargo on imports from the white minority regime in Rhodesia.

Capt, Hall said the unloading was heing done by members of the National Union of Operat-Engineers and by casual

Auto Prices Might Rise $755

U.S. Experts Urge Changes In Car Safety, Pollution Law

By Richard Witkin

NEW YORK, March 20 (NYT). A government technical commiturged yesterday that serious consideration be given to easing automobile pollution laws and changing some auto-safety rules due to take effect by 1976.

. In a report prepared for the Office of Science and Technology, ramable to Kennedy. The sentine group estimated that the stor is planning to campaign for rules, as they now stand, would add $755 to the retail price of the average car.

The inch-thick study, entitled

"Cumulative Regulatory Effects on the Cost of the Automotive auto huyers and users can be the Transportation," represents more best news the public has had in than nine months' work by a years." committee.

- Its chairman is Lawrence A. Goldmuntz, 49, a New Yorker who ohtained a doctorate in applied science at Yale and joined the government in the Johnson administration after a successful career running an electronics

The Office of Science and Technology, which asked for the study, is an agency responsible to Congress. It is headed by Edward E. David, who is also President Nixon's science adviser.

Air Quality

The committee argued that national air quality standards could not be attained in many urban areas in the specified 1975-1977 time period even if automobile exhaust-emission controls were enforced as now written. The study team warned that such-enforcement would cost $63 billion more than the benefits it would bring in the decade from 1976 through 1985. The committee especially questioned the need for expansive safety air bags that would expand instantly in an anto crash to cushion its occupants. The group suggested that equal or better safety could be provided at much cheaper cost by safety harnesses.

Double Standard

The committee registered fervent disapproval of what it believes is a double standard in the auto-pollution law it is seeking to have modified.

"The 1970 Clean Air Act amendments," the report said, "require that stationary pollutant sources be controlled by application of the best available technology, taking into account the cost achieving such control.

Mobile sources, on the other hand, are required to reduce their pollutant emissions by a specific minimum percentage by certain deadlines, regardless of

Relative Effects

"This difference in legislative treatment," the report continued, "does not appear to have any relationship to the relative effects of stationary and mobile sources on the health and welfare of the country, as measured by the economic costs of damages attributable to the different pollutant sources.

The report drew immediate criticism from Sen. Edmund S. Muskle, D., Maine, author of the Clean Air Act, which sets forth the auto-pollution standards. The presidential candidate issued a statement saying that the report went along with the attack on the legislation by the Big Three auto makers, were being used on each shift, around the clock, he added. Mr. Hall said, "Everything is going according to normal." About 30 students from the predominantly black Southern University at Baton Rouge, La., staged a demonstration at the port yesterday but dispersed when it became clear the Argentina ship would not dock until today.

"The report serves big bust-Sen. Muskia contended. puts the interests of the lahorers who are normally employed when ILA members are not available.

Kennedy Opposes Trade WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP).-Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. D., Mass., said today the ship will unload "a tremendous cargo of American discredit."

Under a Senate amendment last September, Sen. Kennedy said, the United States joins Portugal and South Africa as the only nations breaking a UN ban on trade with a nation where 250,000 whites dominate the lives of five million blacks,

He discounted defense needs for chrome ore as a reason for resuming trade with Rhodesia. The first shipment, he said, will probably be processed into stainless steel for kitchen utensils and other consumer goods.

Refuses Clearance to Fulbright Unit

State Dept. Bars Peace Talk Study

By Murrey Marder

WASHINGTON, March 20 (WP).— The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has met a flat refusal from the Nixon acministration for security clearance of an analysis of Vietnam negotiations between 1964 and

In a letter to the committee. the State Department contended that the committee's intended staff report, based on four unpublished volumes of the 47-volume Pentagon papers, "could harm" present diplomatic efforts in the Indochina conflict.

The title of the suppressed report clearly suggests its contents: "Negotiations, 1964–1968: The Halfhearted Search for Peace in Vietnam."

Committee staff members are continuing negotiations with the State Department to seek partial clearance of the report. One argument they are using is that President Nixon on Jan 25 unilaterally declassified information on a dozen secret meetings be-tween presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators in Paris.

The committee, headed by Sen.
J. William Fulbright, D., Ark., made public yesterday the first of a series of its staff analyses of the Pentagon papers. This non-sensitive report, entitled "Vietnam Commitments, 1961," by staff researcher Ann L. Hollick, is a much briefer study of 12 pages, plus 26 pages of documents previously available publicly. Even so, there are several security deletions because the text used was the version published by the Government Printing Office, although the deleted material, on intelligence operations, was printed in newspapers last Sen, Fulbright said the published report on 1961 commit-ments underscores the "unprecedented . . . extent to which the executive branch misled both Congress and the public" in policies and decisions of the first year of the Kennedy administration, which significantly deepened the U.S. military involvement in the Vietnam war,"

Kennedy Years

This staff study emphasizes that "It was United States officials who first broached the subject of a bilateral treaty [with South Vietnam) and United States officials who pressed for direct military involvement in istration's consideration of combat troops did reach the public hy means of leaks to the press, neither Congress nor the public was made aware of the intergova bilateral treaty." The report also focuses attention on a 1961 recommendation by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then President Kennedy's military adviser, to send a 6,000 to 8,000man U.S. military task force into South Vietnam "under the guise of performing flood-relief work." That was first disclosed in press accounts last summer. The treaty never materialized, nor did the Kennedy administration send the troops Gen. Taylor recommended. "Had one or both of these measures been carried out at that time," the report notes in retrospect, "a greatly increased national commitment to Vietnam would have resulted' much earlier. During the Johnson administration U.S. troops reached over a half-million men.

Disclosure Opposed Refusal to declassify the committee staff's more sensitive report on negotiations was express-ed in a letter dated March 9 by David M. Abshire, assistant secretary of state for congressional relations, to Sen. Fulbright.

Mr. Abshire noted that the intended report did contain "par-

Nixon Assigns Highest Priority To Drug Control

NEW YORK, March 20 (UPI). -President Nixon said today that control of narcotles traffic was "No. 1 priority" for law en-forcement in his administration. At the opening of the New York regional Office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, Mr. Nixon called traffic in narcotics "the most reprehensible of all crimes."

He spoke approvingly of the overnment action that he said had eliminated the use of opium and other narcotics in Turkey and China, and credited tough law-enforcement programs in both countries.

Myles Ambrose, head of the new drug enforcement office in the Justice department, said that the goal was to drive the beroin pusher from the streets and thereby increase the price and reduce the quality of the drug. This, be added, would force addicts to seek treatment.

Mustard on the Mutton

It is said that President Pompidou, explaining to Prime Minister Heath why there would be a French referendum on the enlargement of the Common Market, remarked: "In France, people take mustard with mutton." As an expression of the familiar truth that there is no disputing national political tastes, this is colorful. But Mr. Heath, who is trying to convince the British to eat their mutton with a quite different sance—purely parliamentary—most have wendered whether it was altogether necessary to display this plebiscitary mustard across the Channel.

By the same token, there are Democratic leaders in the United States, confronting their party's plethora of presidential aspirants and the variety of means of testing them before the public, who must sigh a little in secret for the bland, simple, political diet offered, for example, in the Polish elections, In Poland, three parties and a very large number of candidates were neatly compressed within a national unity front, which left the main issue of Sunday's elections in very little doubt.

It is to be noted that the substance of the political dish being presented to all of these peoples-France, Britain, the United States and even Poland—Is supposed to be the same mutton. That is, they are being given some form of democracy, some means of expressing the popular will. The British kind has evolved from the medieval king in council. The French form has strong Napoleonic overtones. The Polish brand is a cross-breeding hetween the old parliamentarianism and the more recent dictatorship of the proletariat, and there is hope that, next time around, parliamentarianism will be strengthened. As for the United States, its mixture of referendum and caucus, primary and convention, public opinion poll and promotional campaign, utilizes almost every political device the mind of man has conceived.

Which of these gives most effective expression to a truly national wili? The British will emphasize the responsibility of the elected member of the House of Commons. The French will say that they put issnes as well as men before the electorate. The Poles will point to the fact that 97 percent of their voters exercised the franchise. The Americans? Well, they have been experimenting with the uses and abuses of popular sovereignty since the colonists first assembled, as elected legislators or in town meeting. Across the 50 states, there are those who like mustard with their mutton, and those who prefer mint sauce. Some, in fact, can't stomach mutton, and are vociferous in demands, not only for a dlfferent sauce but a different meat. But in the end, they will be presented with two real choices on the table d'hôte, and will elther feast or go without.

Each nation to its taste—but the bill of fare is not always drawn up by those who are to consume the meal. The United States can at least say that it is less inhibited than most countries by habit, that it is willing to experiment with new cuisines, and that It makes a real effort to have the meal's content chosen by the diner, rather than the chef. If this does not always occur, or if the entrees that emerge are sometimes flavorless or even indigestible—there is the next meal to be anticipated. It might-just might—suit the epicures and plain folks

Ron Ziegler or Dr. Viktor Liszka or Sen. Hugh Scott or some other self-appointed spokesman for ITT reveals to us breathlessly that Mrs. Dita Beard is in reality Ameila Earhart. Or that Harold Geneen of ITT is actually a 101-year-old Sioux warrior named Little Blg Mouth and that the celebrated Beard memorandum is nothing more than a fragment of his autobiography filched from the files of an editor at McGraw-Hill. You have to wonder, when you reflect upon the record of this case, what these people take us for, with their paper shredders and scatter-shot counterattacks and glib denials, and recurrent need to have their memories "refreshed." And, beyond that, you have to wonder what it is that they are so fright-

It is this last question that puzzles us the most, for the text of the memorandum which was attributed to Mrs. Beard by Jack Anderson was available for inspection three weeks ago, when the ITT story first broke; it appeared in this newspaper and others at the time. So it doesn't matter whether the version that Mr. Anderson's assistant Brit Hume showed to Mrs. Beard was the same as the one ultimately published because she could see what he had published.

If it is a "forgery" and a "fraud" and a "hoax" now, it was all those things then, and she could have saved herself and a lot of other people a great deal of trouble by saying so at the start.

Instead, according to Mr. Anderson, she twice confirmed its authenticity: and according to Dr. Liszka she told him only that she was "upset" when she wrote lt. Instead, ITT sent for the paper shredders and told Mrs. Beard, by her account, to "take a vacation," to "get lost," and there then hegan the first, frantic effort to destroy her reputation and reliability by trying to make her out to be "disturbed" and "irrational" and given to drink "excessively."

Meanwhile the White House has embarked on an almost panicky-and exceedingly clumsy-campaign against Mr. Anderson for irresponsibility, and the press in general for unfairness, and the Democrats for taking partisan joy in pursuing this affair.

Why? And why, for that matter, did Mr. Richard Kleindienst feel obliged to ask for a reopening of the hearings on his nomination to be attorney general, even though Mrs. Beard's memorandum nowhere mentions his name or raises any questions bearing on his fitness for that job.

Surely all this is an excessive response to a memorandum whose author is first pictured as totally unreliable and which is then presented as a "fraud," and one explanation for it may be that the administration and ITT, in their shared contempt for public

ST. PETERSEOURG-Some details have reached here of the recent outbreak of anti-Semitic feeding among the peasants in the government of Kieff. The seat of the outbreak was at Shpola where the attackers split into two parties one of which pillaged the shops, throwing the goods into the streets and burning them. The second group entered the houses and there broke everything they could lay their hands on. Even the synagogues were ruined. It was only when the Cossacks arrived that the plundering ceased.

It is probably only a matter of time before sensibilities, greatly overestimated the ease with which they would be able to put the ITT affair to rest. Discredit Mrs. Beard, they apparently reasoned, and that would he the end of it. When it wasn't, attention was turned to Mr. Anderson and the press and now the memorandum itself, and that hasn't so far succeeded-and should in no way be allowed to-for the simple reason that Mrs. Beard's memorandum has long since ceased to be anything more than incidental to the ITT affair. It was essential, of course, in the sense that it brought the subject up. But the bulk of its substance, which has to do with ITT's contribution to the Republican party convention this summer in San Diego, has been amply documented elsewhere. Its passing reference to the ITT antitrust case—"I am convinced... that our noble commitment has gone a long way toward our negotiations on the mergers eventually coming out as (Mr. Geneen) wants them"-is an expression of a personal opinlon, rather than an assertion of a deal, And the wholly unsubstantiated observation that "(Attorney General) Mitchell is definitely helping ns," which is the only other hint of a relationship between the contribotion and the out-of-court settlement of the ITT antitrust case, is hardly an important piece

In short, the Dita Beard story is a sideshow, and always has been, however much the administration would have us believe it to be the main event. What matters in the IIT affair is that a great corporation thought it entirely proper to agree to bankroll the Repoblican convention at precisely the time It was seeking to negotiate a favorable settlement of its anti-trust case with a Republican administration, and that it won the settlement it wanted; that a lot of people high up in the administration, if not Mr. Mitchell, were "definitely helping" IIT to plead its case more affectively, including Mr. Kleindlenst, who had categorically denied having had anything to do with it; that the White House was thoroughly involved in a process which succeeded in turning the antitrust division away from its declared purpose of seeking a Supreme Court ruling on the case; that Mr. Mitchell's word has been directly contradicted by the lieutenant governor of California This much, and more, has already been recorded-withoot benefit of Mrs. Dita Beard-and quite obviously there is more to be known. For the Senate Judiciary Committee not to press on would be to leave unanswered the question of what there is in the ITT affair for the administration and ITT and the Republicans in Congress to ba frightened of, or whether, in fact, there is anything these people need to be so fearful

WASHINGTON-President Harding has issued orders recalling all the American forces now remaining on the Rhine as the Army of occupation. This means that after more than three years' service, the khaki forces of the United States scattered along the famous German river are to start homeward, and not an armed American will be left in Europe within a few weeks. The decision caused some surprise in Paris last night as it had been rather expected that progressive reduction would continue for soma time to come.

Young China

By Joseph Kraft

PEKING—"How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Peking?" I asked a young woman who had come up from the countryside to be a student at Tsinghua University here in Peking. She didn't understand the question, though I had been talking with her and some students and professors for an hour about the contrast between rural Chins and the softer life of the cities.

So I elaborated at some length, going so far as to sing a refrain from the famous old song about "Paree." But only after a professor who had understood the question very well at the beginning explained it to her in detail did she respond. Then she said:

"Ive never heard of a song like that. But if somebody comes from the countryside to visit Peking and doesn't want to go back to the countryside, that means he has changed in a bad

'Cultural Evening'

A couple of days earlier I went to what the Chinese call a cul-tural evening that featured per-formances by boys and girls ranging in age from 12 to 15. A fetching girl came on stage, and sang the following words: "I am the little red soldier of Chairman Mao, and when I grow up I want to be a worker or a peasant or a soldler and serve the broad masses."

A few skits thereafter a group of boys dressed in blue trousers and white blouses came on stage carrying hammers, saws and planes and making the motions of using them. They sang a song that included the following lines: "Chairman Mao tells us not only to study in the classroom but also to do manual work. Chairman Mao teaches we should be humbla."

In Nanking earlier I was taken to a militia exercise. Apart from a women's unit and a workers' unit, the assemblage included a unit of boys and girls aged from six to 10.

The youngsters fired rifles with fixed bayooets at targets over one hundred yards away. They set up mortars and fired them at more distant targets. Most of their shots were direct hits.

"That's not a very peaceful scene," I said to the local militia leader, pointing to the young people. He said: "We have to be prepared."

In Nanking I also visited a lake where a group of young people were disporting in rowboats. I hailed a bunch of boys, and began asking them questions through my interpreter. I asked first what they wanted to be when they grew up.

One said: "I want to serve the motherland as a worker, a peasant or a soldier. I would like to join the army, but so many want to join the army that it is not certain. Still I will be glad to do whatever I am called to do." Had they heard of the Nixon visit? Yes. Through both the newspapers and the radio. What did they think of it?

The hoy parrotted word for word lines I had heard all over China: "It is a positive move. It helps relations between the people of China and the people of America. That is good because the Chinese people are a great people and the American people are a great people."

In a small village several hundred miles from Peking I visited the local school, and sat in on a course in Marxism-Leninism given to 17-year-olds. They were studying "The Anti-Dühring," a pamphiet written by Marx's sidekick Friedrich Engels against the anti-Marxist German philosopher Eugen Dühring.

I asked one of the boys in the class if he could tell me who Dühring was. He couldn't, I asked the teacher. He said: "We're only reading extracts from the pamphlet."

The International Herald Tribune welcomes letters from readers. Short letters have a better chance of being published. All letters are subject to condensation for space reasons. Anonymous letters will not be considered for publication. Writers may request that their letters be signed only with initials, but preference will be given to those fully signed and bearing the writer's complete address.

When I persisted further, he identified Dühring by likening him to the former Chinese leader ousted by Mao in the Cultural Revolution. He said: "Dühring was a Liu Shao-chi-type revision-ist who lived at the time of Karl

Perhaps the most impressive young person I have met in is a 17-year-old girl who is the leader of a small group that makes transformers in a neighborhood factory outside Peking. She is articulate, intelligent, and seems to manage without any strain half a dozen people much older than she is,

Bernard Levin From London:

After 13 years in the hot seat, Trevelyan retired not long ago-it is said he did so in canny anticipation of the trouble any censor was to face with some of the films being made these days...

LONDON.—There is an amazing row going on at the moment over the film censor. The British film censor, I should explain, is in effect an official of the film industry itself; his function is to classify all films due to be exhibited in Britain into cate-gories which are roughly of those films suitable for anyone to see, those which children should see only if accompanied by an adult, those which children should not see in any circumstances, and those which nobody at all should sea (these last being the ones he refuses any a certificate to). The censor, however, has no legal povers, and his classification has no binding effect and cannot be enforced. Until recently, however, what has happened has almost always been that the municipal authorities (some 600 of them throughout the country), who do have the power to compel cinema exhibitors to respect the censor's classifications, and to ban from showing films he has refused to license, have automatically followed his recom-

Enter Murphy

But Trevelyan, after 13 years in the hot seat, retired not long ago—It is said that he did so canny anticipation of trouble any censor was about to face with some of the firm being made these days—and his successor, Stephen Murphy, has been in hot water almost from the moment he picked up the SCISSOIS. The first clue that something had gone wrong came from the municipal authorities. Hithere, as I have said, they were almost always content to accept the censor's classification; on very rara occasions they might override his decisions, but almost invariably in the direction of more, not less, liberalism (Marka Brando's "The Wild Ones," barred by the censor, was licensed by the London County Council. Noz, however, up and down the county more and more local authornies are taking their own line, and officials are solemnly spending hours every week seeing firm and licensing them (or refusing to license them) according?

And, as is inevitable in such a situation, there is a vast and hugely confusing difference be-tween attitudes in different para of the country. In Souther for instance (a once-popular, now lading, seaside reactions number of films, including "The Devils," have been benned outright after being passed by the censor: in Berkshire, a county not previously noted for any particular cultural attitude ro fewer than 17 films refused a license by the censor have been given the go-ahead. On the whole, however, as you might expect the general terdency has been for the wowers to carry the day. But the wowsers have been finding some curious allies, and the censur likewise. For instance one exhibitor known for putting on serious films of high cultural content and also money-spinnes with a decidedly gamy flator recently came out with an astonishing biast at the censur for being too lax, and a demand that he should resign. Whereupon, the even more astonishing sight was seen of a group of film-makers some of them curfing the most-impeccably progressive credentials, defending the

As McGovern saw the Nixon program, it raised two broad issues. Ona was the President's use of busing as a political distraction, Nixon "staged this elaborate charade tonight," McGovern said, because he wants Americans to forget about the real issues in this country - unemployment, inflation, the war."

In states such as Wisconsin, Michigan, Massachusetts and California, Democratic voters may well be ready for that approach -if George McGovern can identify himself with the basic issues he mentioned. Even in Florida, surveys have shown, people who voted in the primary were more concerned about the war and tha economy than about busing.

But the other issue that Mc-Govern saw in the President's busing message has potentially even deeper significance. That is the integrity of the Constitution and the courts. Americans hava often been angry at the Supreme Court, But again and again in our history they have decided that their own best safety lay in accepting the court's function as interpreter of tha Constitution, however temporarily uncomfortable, in remaining faithful to the rule of law. Someone is going to make that fight now against Richard Nixon and the political lawyers advising him, and it is not necessarily going to be a losing fight.

Row Has Started

The row started, incidentally, when Mr. Murphy licensed, in quick succession, Sam Peckin-pah's "Straw Dogs" and Stank? Kubrick's "A Clockwork Orange" but it would have broken ou sooner or later anyway. For while many people in and around the film business have been envying the theater, where the was abolished entirely some three years ago, a backhash has been quietly building up, and is now doing so noisly. (Not only, of course, over the cinema, but also over books and magazines.) The battle is taking place on the ground of violente; but a lot of those fighting for more, or tighter, censorship are using violence as a stalking horse for their real target; sexual

The question we have to ask is: Are we watching, or about to watch, the pendulum swing back away from the greater freedom to act and write and publish whit we please? I think we probably are and if so, we are in for a very merry time indeed, with the re-fighting of wars widely believed to have long since ended The shots at the hapless film censor are beginning to look lie those at Fort Sumter.

Bread Interpretation

In some cases, these take-overs were accomplished through broad interpretation of statutes passed years ago for other purposes. The take-overs, along with the nationalization of copper that did have parliamentary approval constitute the only major structural changes since Mr. Allende took office in late 1970.

In Chile, the constitution can be amended almost as easily as a bill can be passed. Perhaps because of this flexibility, problems of interpretation seldom arose in the past:

But under the previous administration of Eduardo Frei, a .Christian Democrat Congress amended the constitution in two critical ways to increase executive

A constitutional tribunal was established to mediate conflicts of interpretation, and the president was given the power of calling a plebiscite if he was blocked on a constitutional reform.

These changes took effect when Mr. Allende entered office. With the bitter division of the country over his Marxist program, tha chances of a plebiscite became a topic that was as widely discussed as soccer or the lottery, Recent by-elections in which Mr. Allende's Popular Unity coalition was defeated have convinced all of the opposition and much of the government that he might well lose a plebiscite. Mr. Allende, who was elected with 36 percent of the vote in a three-way race, has said he would resign if he lost such a rote.

By next Wednesday, Mr. Al-lende must return the Christian Democrats' amendment on takeovers to Congress. He cannot veto it, but he can veto parts of it in a way that might make it acceptable to him.

But unless the form of these partial vetoes is negotiated, it will surely be rejected by Congress. It is here that the language of new procedure of constitutional interpretation may prove insie-

What the Christian Democratic amendment proposes is to delineate three areas of the economy: state-owned industry, a limited sector of small private holders and a wide sector of worker-own-

Egypt to Try 2 Foreigners

CAIRO, March 20 (AP)-Egypt's state prosecutor-general today demanded life in prison and $2,300 fines each for a Belgian and a Frenchman on charges of spying for Israel No trial date was set.

A second Belgian, son of the accused Jacques-Pierre Herrant, was released for lack of evidence, an indictment issued by the pros-ecutor and distributed by the of-ficial Middle East News Agency

The Frenchman, Jean-Marc Vousux, 29, is a free-lance journalist and a Sorbonne student. The elder Herrant, 41, is a businessman from Brussels.

The three were arrested last month, accused of having distributed anti-government leaflets.

3-Ton Whale Dies On Sicilian Beach

PALERMO, Sicily, March 20 (UPI) -A three-ton, 23-foot whale bled to death today, two days after running aground on a beach near Palermo. Fishermen tried in vain to free the whale while thousands of weekend excursionists watched. The fishermen said they would tow the carcass out to sea.

Closed Since March 10 When 2 Died in Riot

EL FERROL, Spain, March 20 (Reuters).-Hundreds of striking workers returned to the stateowned naval shippards here today after a government threat to impose martial law unless they ended a stoppage over wage claims.

Some 2,500 men, over half of the work force, turned up this morning, and the rest were expected to return on a staggeredshift basis over the next 24 hours.

The yards, which build destroyers for the Spanish Navy, have been closed since March 10, when two men died in clashes with police.

The disturbances were officially blamed on Communist agitators, but in a letter read in parish churches two days after the deaths, El Ferrol's bishop said, You cannot solve a labor problem hy using the word subversion when the problem goes so deep. Cost of Living

The grievances of the shippard workers, who are demanding higher wage scales to compensate for a rise in the cost of living in northern Spain, and the action of the police highlighted the crisis in Spanish labor relations,

Strike Ended Plastic Junk in Sargasso Sea In Shipyards Reported by Marine Experts

By Elsie Carper

-Eleven days out of the Cacrew sighted great patches of seaweed in the Atlantic and in the weeds they found live crabs. The weeds are still there in the Sargasso Sea and so are the crabs. But something has been added-small bits of plastic. mostly white but some green, blue or red. The marine biologists from the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution report in the March 17 issue of Science magazine that the fine nets they were using to gather samples of fish, snails, crabs and shrimp also picked up the plastic. Most were in the shape of pellets hut they could identify a syringe needle, a cigar holder, jewelry and a button snap. The pieces were britle, ap-parently because of the westhering-out of plasticizers, the suostances that give flexibility to such materials. The hiologists, Edward J. Carpenter and K. L. Smitb jr., raise the possibility that this could be a source of PCB contamination recently found in plant and animal specimens in the Sargasso

PCBs (polychlorinated biphenyls) are industrial chemicals widely used as plasticizers, Like DDT, they make their way into marine organisms and more up the food chain. Concentrations have been found in Sargasso seaweed, zooplankton, fish and in the livers of dolphins. The Sargasso Sea is an irregular, oval-shaped area of two

WASHINGTON, March 20 (WP), million square miles in the Atlantic between the West Indies nary Islands, Columbus and his and the Azores. Currents, including the Gulf Stream on the western rim, swirl around it. The floating oatches of weeds are rich in specimens of marine

Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Smith were cruising in the western area of the Sorgasso Sea last September and October when their nets brought up the plastic particles. Most of them were small, about an eighth of an inch in diameter. Hydroids and diatoms —polyps and microscopic organisms-were attached to them.

The nets also ran into lumps of petroleum, which dissipated but left black smears.

The source of the particles may have been the dumping of wastes from cities or by cargo and passenger ships, their report suggests. Some of the areas they sampled are within major shippin; lanes from Europe to Cen-tral America and the Panama

The area closest to land was 149 miles from Bermuda and the one closest to the continent was 558 miles southeast of Ne. York. In a telephone interview, Mr. Carpenter said that he could see particles bobbing in the water about every 10 yards.

"The thing that gets me the most," he said, "is that man has been an earth only a short period of time and plastics bave been produced only for about the last 25 years. Finding those things way out in the ocean-it's scary that man could do something like

Artiques and Gastronomy at ATransplanted Parisian Fair

By Hebe Dorsey

et cla Brocante (through March 26) offers a gastronomic as well as a shopping tour of France.
The fair, held for many years in kris on the Boulevard Elchard. Lenir, moved to the He de Chatou we years ago. The reason, hopess traffic lams. The change is al to the good. The island fabot 15 kilometers west of Paris is in one of the prettiest bends of the Seine, close to a spot but was a favorite with the impresionists. Right now, with plum rees in bloom and weeping in leaf, the area has an calillating, spring-is-here at-

Orghized by the Syndicat Nationalles, Antiquatres, the fair is a twic-yearly event which draws. 600 shibitors from all over Franc. Its good-natured, hearty ambinee attracts from 40,000 to 100,00 people, said fair president René Ajalbert, "It depends a great deal on the weather," he remaked. "This fair is not pretentios, but it is great because It offers a cross-section of bro-caute (junky antiques) from all: over Fance. Professional buyers come fom all Europe."

Here is a brief look at four of the better stands. Jacques and Monique Hanolte (18 Ruis Popin-court—the fair has "streets") specialize in French popular arts. They have a shop in La Garde Freinst, near Saint Tropez and do their buying in nearby vil-lages.

Their humble objects have a primitive, diamond-in-the-rough beauty that makes them ideally suited to stark, modern decors. For example, Mr. Hanotte's great planter (200 francs) was once a benestre, a wood container shing over a mule's back and used to spread manure. A rough, wood cheese drainer would make an Dinistral centerpiece. Trousseaus, Too

Two shaps down the street, Jane Mouflet is selling an assortment of English furniture and old trousceaus - blouses, petticoars, and nightgowns, elaborately handembroidered, as well as white talle bedspreads, costing as little as 150 francs.

Madame Clement, 10 Rue Saint Sabin, deals in Bayeux porcelain (a blue morning glory pattern) and tiny collector's items. Originally from Luc-sur-Mer, near Caen, Mine. Clement has been exhibiting at the fair for 20 years. Her good buys include a 90-franc pewter owl—a bargain for those who know that vermell owls are fetching $200 at Tif-

ART AND THE LAW

Foresight to Protect the Creative Vision

By Howard Taubman

NEW YORK (NYT).—Despite their belief in the uniqueness of their vision and their work, visual artists, whether famous or struggling, rerely take the formal step of protecting their paintings, drawings and sculptures from copying or reproduction by

Failure to copyright is one of the first points stressed in a new book prepared and published under the auspices of the Assoelated Councils of the Arts, with the cooperation of the Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts and the Art Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

The book, The Visual Artist and the Law, which was put together by a group of lawyers. cites as an example the case of the monumental sculpture by Picasso created for the city of Chi-

Why the Reluctance?

Because of a failure to copyright this work, the book contends, "anyone is free to make miniature reproductions of the work, place photographs of it on postcards or dress up any other copying technique without the payment of compensation." Speculating on the reasons for

"Under this concept," the book explains, "if an artist at an early stage of his career sells a paint-ing for $200 and years later the work is resold for $5,000, he would be entitled to receive a portion of the $4,800 incremental gain." There is no such law in the United States. However, in the last year a group of lawyers and artists has developed a form entitled "the artist's reserved rights transfer and sales agreement." hy which it is suggested that the artist can obtain a droit de sui c

The suggested contract requires that when an artist or his gallery sells a work hy the artist, the purchaser shall agree that a percentage (15 percent) of the ap-preciated value would be paid to the artist or his estate. The contract further stipulates that the purchaser and each subsequent purchaser shall insist on a similar contract with the next purchaser. Such an obligation shall continue, it is proposed, for 21 years after the death of the artist and his surviving spouse.

When you want to save time travelling, Hertz is with you all the way—with offices at most major airports in the world. So you can step off the plane into a Hertz car, and leave the crowd behind.

 Book through your travel agent. He has all the details on Hertz cars and rates throughout the world.

 Book through your airline. Book your car when you book your flight. Hertz has agreements with most major airlines to make it possible.

 Book through your Hertz office. Just call your local Hertz office before you fly and make the arrangements then.

However you decide to book your Hertz car, you can choose from a wide range of Fords and other fine cars, all kept in tip-top condition by the Hertz multi-point dependability check.

Hertz chauffeur-drive service. If you like, Hertz can do the driving for you. Hertz chauffeur service is available in key cities in 17 European countries.

Hertz is with you all the way

CHARCOAL MELLOWING IS one of the reasons Jack Daniel's is uniquely different from other American whiskeys.

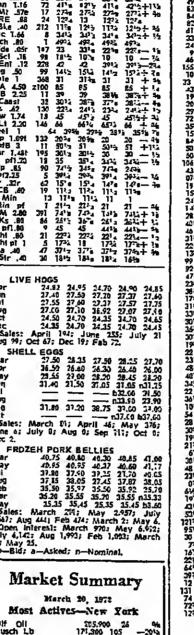

It's an age-old whiskey-making process where every drop is seeped through 12 feet of finely ground charcoal to develop a smoother and mellower taste. You'll discover the difference yourself by asking for Jack Daniel's at duty-free shops throughout Europe. Or, if you prefer sampling just a sip or two, stop by your favorite restaurant, bar or hotel.

In monetary talks, Mr. Connally said, the United States is "trying to be as pragmatic, as realistic as sympathetic and as cooperative as we know how to be." But he cautioned that before a system designed to serve for at least a decade can be worked out. "we're going to live with some uncertainty." But it will not be "too unsettling," he said.

The issue he has raised of finding a new forum for negotietions may be "inirly easy" to settle, Mr. Connally said. He suggested that three sets of ne-gotiations might take place almultaneously one among the traditional Group of Ten countries, one in another group representative of the 20 nations on the executive board of the TMP and a new group representing major power blocs.

Mr. Connally also suggested that the Soviet Union might take part in the third group, because there is "every evidence her in-fluence is going to be reaching out" commercially during the next decade.

As to the widespread impres-sion that European authorities are impatient for the United States to rush into reform negotlations, Mr. Connally expressed doubt that they really want this. "We always assume that what we hear from the Europeans is what they want," he chided wryly, adding, "They're a hell of a lot smarter than we are" in econom-

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Shell Sees Slowing Oil Demand

Shell, of Holland, says the growth of demand for oil in Western Europe over the next decade will be markedly lower than the 12 percent growth over the last 10 years. In addition, the decline in profit per barrel over the last decade will have to be reversed to emable the industry to finance its future activities, it says in its latest staff journal. Though this decline has been offset by productivity gains, it cannot be assumed that the same will be true in the future because of rising costs. This rise, by squeezing profit margins, may make it increasingly difficult to meet future demand, the company says.

Employees Buy Chicago Railroad

The Interstate Commerce Commission has approved the purchase of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway by a group of the railroad's employees. The commission authorized the group, known is the Northwestern Employees Transportation Corp. to issue up to 300,000 shares of class "A" common stock of $50 par value and three shares of class "T" common stock of same par value. The ICC said the gronp will assume Northwestern's obligations and liabilities, which amount to about $415 million.

Oil Pipeline Trans-Canada Route Harms Nature Least WASHINGTON, March 20

U.S. Reports

On Alaskan

(Reuters).-The Interior Department said today that an oil pipeline from Alaska through Canada would be less damaging to the environment than a proposed trans-Aleska route.

However, the report noted, the proposed trans-Alaska route would be more economical.

The assessment was made in a massive nine-volume report on the environmental impact on the controversial Alaska pipeline Oil companies want to construct an 800-mile pipeline from the rich Alaskan North Slope to the warm-water port of Valdez, so the Pacific Coast. The pipeline, strongly opposed by conservation groups, would carry the equivalent of 2 million barrels of oil a day across one of America's last great wilderness Tankers Ruled Out

The report ruled out a third alternative—shipment of the oil by ice-breaking tanker—as "prob-ably not feasible at this time because of offshore terminal problems."

A consortium of eight oil companies want to build the pipeline across Alaska.

The report said a trans-Canada natural gas pipeline was almost certain to be established. Running the gas and oil pipelines along a single corridor instead of separate corridors would result in less environmental cost.

Interior Department Under Secretary William Pecora told a press conference that another edvantage of & trans-Canadiao route is that the pipeline would not have to cross a potential earthquake range, thus lessening the chance of spillage.

He warned against any inference that the report favors one proposal over another. "There is no preference," be added.

Big Board Prices Fall After Strong Opening

By Vartanig G. Vartan

-Some leading glamour stocks suffered big losses on the New York Stock Exchange today while blue-chip issues held to an even keel. The Dow Jones industrial average, ahead by nearly 5 before noco, gave ground thereafter to finish with a small setback.

The Dow closed 1.73 lower for the session at 941.15. At 11:20 a.m. it got as high as 247.10 but stalled upon reaching the resistance zone around 950 on the stock

The big news—and the big loser—was Bausch & Lomb, the atock whose soft contact lens transformed it into glamour status during the last year. Bausch & Lomb plummeted 20 1/4 to end at 105, its poorest price of the day, and ranked as the second most-heavily traded stock.

This issue, which failed to open for trading last Friday, reacted to the disclosure that first-quar-ter earnings will be lower than previously expected, as well as to reports that both the Securities & Enchange Commission and the NYSE are looking into

Labor Chiefs May Quit the Pay Board

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP-DJ1.—Top labor leaders will gether here Wednesday to debate whether to quit the Pay

Many union officials still appear to favor keeping labor's five representatives on the panel, so a walkout seems unlikely despite the board's 27 percent reduction of the first-year pay increase in the West Coast dock settlement. Nevertheless, some key fleures In the AFL-CIO apparently have bien talking more seriously about the possibility of leaving the tripartite board.

Attending what will technically be a special meeting of the AFL-CIO's 25-member executive council will be top officials of three big unions outside the federation, the Teamsters, the United Auto Workers and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's (ILWU) Union, which represents the West Coast dock workers.

Harry Bridges, ILWU president. is expected before the Wednesday meeting to meet privately with International Longshoremen's Association, which represents Atlantic end Gulf Coast dock workers. They are likely to discuss the possibility of staging simultaneous walkouts on both coasts as a result of the Pay Board's wage decision.

NEW YORK, March 26 (NYT). the trading pattern on Thursday, when the optical-goods company skidded 11 3.4 points.

"The bust in a popular stock like Bausch & Lomb-and the continued weakness in Levitz Furniture-turned the glamour list lower and affected the gen-eral market," declared one Wall Street broker.

Levitz fell 4 7/8 to 135 1/2 after giving up 14 1/8 points lest week. The trading pottern of this stock also is the object of several official investigations. After the final bell. Levitz reported 1972 fiscal-year earnings of $1.68 a share, compared with the previous year's 87 cents a

Tokyo Capitol Holdings N.V.

Curação, Netherlands Antilles

The Annual Report for the year 1971 has been published; the following is a summary of the Maneger's Report Included in it

The net asset value per share of Tokyo Cepital Holdings (TCH) on 31st December, 1971 was US $ 23.47 compared with US $ 15.02 at the end of the previous year — an appreciation ct 53.3 %. During the same period, the Tokyo Stock Exchange (TSE) index rose by 34.5 %. As the revaluation of the yen against the dollar was partly responsible for the good performance of the fund in 1971, comparison with the TSE index expressed in US dollars, which rose by 50.3 %, is more appropriate. The two year appreciation of the fund since its start in February 1970 (after allowing for Issue expenses) amounted to 23.5 %. On 9th Merch, 1972 the net asset value per share of TCH emounted to US $ 28.63.

In 1971, the Tokyo Stock Market was characterised by feirly erratic price movements. In the early months of the year the merket experienced a steady, yet gredual, recovery. At this stage, many investors remained cautious in view of the pessimistic torecasts for the economy. In the second guarter of the year, however, the uptrend wes well established with both Japanese and toreign Investors actively participating in the market.

The positive fiscal measures adopted by the Government helped to restore confidence in en early economic recovery end the continued easiness of credit begen to exert a favourable influence on the attitude of institutional investors in Japan. On the 14th August of the new economic measures by President Nixon came as a complete surprise to Japanese investors and the index fell by 20 % curing the month. In October, the market turned upwerd once again mainly because stock prices fully discounted the contusion arising trem the sudden changes in the economic environment. The index maintained a rising trend in the following two months despite consistent selling from abroad. When final agreement was reached on the new parities of major currencies, the tempo of the market rise was substantially accelerated, aided by a favourable supply/demand

As confusion subsided, investors began evaluating the positive side of the changes tollowing the yen revaluation. The growth rate of the Japanese economy may become somewhat lower but the economy will have more stability as Japan has become increasingly wealthy and mature. In assessing the market in 1972, these factors will support an optimistic sentiment. The present briskness in the market may well be turther stepped up in the current year should the economic recovery of Japan be eccelarated.

During 1971, the investment cosition of TCH varied frequently in the light of market developments. Liquidity of 28 % in January was reduced to 5 % in the second quarter and was raised again to 28 % in October. Expecting a merket recovery towards the end of the year, TCH once again invested liquid reserves with the result that at the end of the year liquidity was reduced to only 7 %. During the 12 months, holdings in the construction, housing and financial sectors were increased and positions in electronics and chemicals reduced. The management believes that In 1972 e very flexible Investment policy should be maintained in anticipation of rapidly changing market conditions.

At the Annual General Shareholders' Maeting to be held on 27th April 1972, it will be proposed to pay a dividend of US $ 0.25 per share for the year 1971. For 1970, US $ 0.20 per share was peid.

ALL MY FRIENDS ARE GOING TO BE STRANCERS

By Larry McMurtry, Simon & Schuster, 286 pp. $7.50. Reviewed by Jim Harrison

WHEN I finished Larry Mc-Murtry's last novel, "Moving On, which was an exhaustingly long fiction centered on the rodeo world, I was very much put off by a peculiar laxness in the writing. I read the book in a small cabin in Pine Creek. Mont, during a cold rain and was often disturbed by dairy cattle staring in the window. In the mood and texture of the novel they should have been beef cattle. Then as several months passed I discovered—as with McMurtay's previous work, especially "The Last Picture Show"—that I could remember at will nearly every incident in the novel, that the whole book was disturbingly back there in my brain with the rest of my sainted fictional heroes whether I wanted it to be or not, that like it or not McMurtry was incapable of even remotely indifferent fiction.

"All My Friends Are Going to Be Strangers' is a much more powerful demonstration of this 'memorable" aspect in McMurtry's work, a quality that is central in terms of esthetics to any good novel. It is simply the viable compone that good art sticks and draws us back to life while the bad is easily forgotten. But the new novel is a shorter, more violently energetic book than "Moving On." It is a desperate and intimidating work and you are liable to finish it ing one heart ruff, six diamond with relief and then pick it up several days later to see if the man really said what he did. The novel begins slowly from tricks and the club ace. . Un-fortunately, South's void in dismonds was a hindrance, since it the viewpoint of a naive young writer, Danny Deck, on the verge of his first success, and you wonder if it's going to be another extension of the portrait of the artist trip. But within a half-dozen chapters it is evident that the opposite is intended, that we are not to share in the meptly uninteresting neuroticisms of a writer but in the bizarre emergence of a character who is no more coy about art than the plumber down the road. The narrator is so painfully vulnerable and likable in his rites de pas-sage that McMurtry's develop-ment of his character is harrowing in the old, religious sense of word Rather than the arch or fey "writer's life," we have a tale that might have been told by an intensely literate Merle Haggard or a surreal Jimmy

Rodgers.

The skeleton of the plot is simple; an extended trip from Texas to California and back to Texas, covering a year's time in which Danny marries a bad woman, breaks up with her and meets a good one who is incapable of healthy love. The mar-riage to Sally, one of those and a novelist. He wants abl lambent long-legged beauties of loves Jill but can't have ber, he the West, is a horror story, Sally is so bleak, so mentally stingy and torpid one wishes she would break her neck or run off with a balloon salesman. The relationship with Jill, whom Danny meets in Hollywood, has a lunar. ice-cold lyrical quality about it: the lover and the beloved are both burnt-out cases in a prolonged unsuspended state of crack-up.

Along with this volatile triangle there are sharp portraits of 20 or so minor characters ranging from ignitors, librarians, pimps, cor-poss and producers to editor, whores, students, Texas Ranger, and Sally's parents. The thredominant minor characters are especially finely drawn: Godern Lloyd-Jons, an Englishman and bisexual sociology professor; Wu a San Francisco Chinaman The has spent 19 years writing an un-publishable 10-ream novel caller The Hothed of Life" and Danny's uncle Lorenzo, an enegetic senile rancher who believes Zapata will return are keeps goats, turkers and pics to feed his hero while he roams his extensive land on a camel

In the last third of the book everything becomes accelerate, hyperthyroid, Russian, the noti-eoding in a galvanic shrick. To scenes are either a mixture of the tragic and pathetic—a plan-call from Jill coding it all and an encounter with the Texas Rang. ers of unsurpassed brutality—a beautifully comic with an air of the totally manic edge of life. throwing one of Godwin's motecyclist hoyfriends over a perchailing a visit to the hospital when Sally gives birth when Danny's bumpkin father in an clubs him senseless with coor-mously funny dialogue between the blows. The very last score vaguely suicidal but still com-has Danny floundering arctiin the Rio Grande trying to drown a manuscript. "My fate seemed to be to meet women it was impossible not to love, but whom it was impossible to low right" seems a key sentence. It is difficult to characterize talent as outsized as Me-

Murtry's. Often his work seem:

disproportionately sensual and violent, but these qualities in "All My Friends Are Going to Be Strangers" are tempered by his comic genius, his ability to render a sense of landscape and place, and an interior intellectual tension that resembles in intensity that of Saul Bellow's Mr. Sammler's Planet." McMurty will flash back and forth between the spiendidly brilliant and the sloppily inside but has a sense of construction and proper velects that always saves him. Mo-Murtry has the faults of a strong but careless writer if Mailer, but they are easily far-given in this particular negawhich seems so thoroughly a type of "American" classic without any of the painless therm of housebroken literature Danny admits to wanting to be CS. Lewis or George Saintsbury but his experience has prepared visualizes his success as evil, the dream defiled, mucked-up, man dane. As the novel ends he wants to be Zapata or a rive

If 85% of Inter-Continental Hotels' clients are businessmen, it's because we offer a complete service for the organization of their business affairs.

You just have to indicate your requirements to our Sales Managers in any of our 26 hotels in Europe and Africa and everything will be ready for the "off": conference rooms, secretaries, simultaneous translations, PA systems, recording equipment, still or cine projectors, receptions and press conferences (we have a Press and Public Relations Department in each hotel).

We have the best means of accomplishing these needs, plus those for your relaxation, service, cuisine, entertainment and friendliness.

Each of our hotels retains the character of its own country... to help you feel abroad. There's just one thing that doesn't change-

Presidency, Anyone?

WASHINGTON.—If there is meet in the United States. You one thing America prides reply that you would (a) Give itself on, it's that anyone in this Phantom jets to Israel; the Make country can grow up and run for President of the United States, Mething has proved how true this is more than the New " Humpshire and Florida primaries. It is ouite possible that there thousands. perhaps even hundreds of thousands of peo-ple who would like to run for Buchwald the presidency. But they are not sure if they have the qualifications. Therefore, as a public service. I am printing the first Presidential Candidate Aptitude Test. If you can pass this test with a score of at least 65. then you are as worth; of running for this office as any of the candidates who have announced

Get a pencil, and no cheating, placse.

First, multiple choice. 1. You and your wife have been attacked by a hard-hitting, unsernoulous newspaper publisher. You (a) Ignore him and go about your business; (b) Attack him on TV: (c) Cancel your subscription to his paper; (d) Break down and cry in front of his building. 2. You are asked where you stand on the issue of school busing. You reply (s) My record speaks for itself; (b) I am not for busing or against busing, but for quality education: (c) Schoolchildren should not become political footballs; (d) I will support the Constitution of the United States, at least until I am elected President.

3. You are addressing a Binal Brith dinner and are asked what you would do about unemploy-

PARIS, March 20 (IHT).-The 20th revised, up-dated edition of Michelin's red guide to Sprin, "Espagne 1972," containing in-formation on 2,470 hotels and restaurants as well as historical returnes, descriptions of principal tourist sites, city maps, and a lexicon in French, Spanish, Garman and English, goes on sale in bookshops this week. It is available in French only.

reply that you would (a) Give the Suez Canal an international unterway: (c) Send the Sixth Fleet to Haifa: (d) Attend the wedding of Moshe Dayan.

4. You are asked to speak at a Soint Patrick's Day communion breakfast and the question of Social Security is raised. You tions with Great Britain; (b) Giving Phantom jets to the IRA; c: Sending American troops to Beifast: id: You reveal for the first time that you had an Irish grandmother.

Now for some mathematical problems. You have five minutes to solve each problem.

I. You are trying to raise mon-ey for your party to hold its national political convention. A large corporation, which has an important case pending with the Justice Department, offers you $400,000 to underwrite it. But you need $600,000. How much would another large corporation, also having trouble with the Justice Department, have to offer you to make up the difference?

2. Your campaign debts include £1 million owed to the telephone company, $000,000 to the airlines. $100,000 to the printer, $50,000 to your advertising agency, and $2,000 to your makeup man. How many hundred-dollar-a-plate tickets would you have to sell to lobbyists to pay off your debts if you win the presidency? How orany years will it take you to pay off the debts if you lose?

Motch the following:

1. Pizza (a) Jewish vote. Sauerbraten (b) Youth vote. 3. Tameles (c) Italian vote.

4. Egg foo young (d) German 5. Knishes 1et Mexican vote.

6. Pot (f) Chinese vote, True or false:

1. It would be impossible to win with a black vice-president. 2. Women have too many physical and psychological problems to be given positions of responsibility.

3. "Hail to the Chief" is the greatest piece of music ever 4. There is oothing nicer than having your daughter married in the White House. 5. If I cou't be President of all the people. I'd rather not be President at all

In the reading room of the 130-year-old London Library, a member examines a copy of Private Eye, a satirical magazine. Heart of the library, however, is its venerable collection of 750,000 books. It is also rich in literary traditions.

London Library-Old Friend in Peril

By Alvin Shuster

TONDON (NYT),—Sherlock Holmes advised Watson to go there and get some books. EM. Forster, in "Two Cheers for Democracy," wrote: "It is not typically English. It is typically civilized." And one of Aldous Huxley's heroes in the short story "The Gioconda Smile" lamented in his doom that he would never again walk down its obscure narrow lanes, "sniffing the dosty perfume of good literature, peering at strange titles, discovering unknown names, exploring the fringes of vast domains of All three were referring to a unique institution, the London Library, one of the world's largest private-subscription libraries, which is confronted with serious financial troubles after serving Britain's leading literary and historical figures for 130 years. A mention of the place to British scholar or author usually elicits reverence, affection and gratitude. Its shelves are open to members, who may wander around and may borrow as many as 15 books for as long as they like.

"We do ask for their return if someone else wants to see them," a librarian explained. "Usually they are back right away. Sometime we have to get a bit nasty. And in rare cases we'll send someone around to have a knock on the door."

All those who know the library-and it is not widely known even in Britain—are rushing to its aid. Roy Jenkins, the deputy leader of the Labor party and an author, is heading a committee that just announced a campaign to raise about $1.3

"The library is largely supported by the fees paid by tha members." Mr. Jenkins said. "There are no government grants. And we do not want to raise the fees because that will freeze out many younger people to whom we attach great importance."

The 5,000 members-there is always room for more-pay about $50 a year for the privilege of either writing for their books from their bomes in the countryside or coming into the three-story Victorian townhouse at No. 14 St. James's Square, in the heart of clubland and not far from Piccadilly.

The atmosphere is informal. There is a red-carpeted reading room with leather chairs, obscure magazines, open stacks and somewhat shabby comfort,

Many of the stacks are surrounded by iron-grille floors, which sometimes worry women in high heels. The late T.S. Eliot, who, like Thackeray, Dickens, Tennyson, Virginia Woolf and Winston Churchill, found the library indispensable, argued against any change. "This is the London Library, not a lady's powder room," said the American-born poet, who served as its president for 13 years until 1965.

Many members find their greatest pleasure in merely strolling through the stacks, even with the iron-grille floors, All 750,000 books, some dating to the 16th century, are within reach and virtually all are available for loan.

For those outside of London mail orders are promptly filled.

George Bernard Shaw often wrote for belp; in the library's files is a postcard from him dated Dec. 12, 1948: "Is there a book in the library on the Elephantine papyri? George Bernard Shaw."

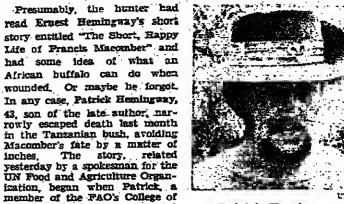

While many Americans use the library on London visits as full members or under a special arrangement, it does not accept members living in the United States. Stanley Gilliam, the librarian, explained that the books would have to travel by sea and would take too long to come back.

The library was founded in large part because Thomas Carlyle complained of the trouble involved in using the vast collection in the British Museum. He did not find its reading room comfortable and he bemoaned the rule against borrowing. With a group of friends he set out to establish an independent library where scholars and students could borrow books in all languages for study at bome. The London Library was born in 1841 with 3,000 books. The library tries to avoid competing with commercial libraries by prohibiting the purchase of English fiction until at least six months after publication. It buys about 8,000 books a year and is running out of space. Only one room of books remains locked away from the members—a collection of erotic literature. It is closed, the librarians say, solely because shy members hid such works in their briefcases and walked ont,
